... and sketches that were drawn by some of the fellows down here.

This is the first chance I've had to write since Dr. Shimmer and the rest of the draft board so generously gave me a one way ticket to Camp W.H.S. but I will now do my "durndest" to keep you informed about the post.

On the way down, I was enjoying the scenery (the back of the neck of the draftee in front of me) when suddenly the ears did an about face and who should it be, but—Wretched. You remember Wretched, the lady's man of our fair city. Take a good look at those classy candid—the blurred one is Wretched.

June looks as though she questions some of their statements—Beware these glib city slickers, June

Oh, I feel quite sure we'll persuade her to buy a "Lens"—

A doughboy's paradise—six lovely girls and nary a man in sight. And I have K. P.

No wonder all the boys beg for library passes—I do too—

★

These are Wacs in training—kinda cute—don't you think so?

But why can't we put it in the camp paper? — It's true!

We were all introduced to Commander-in-Chief J. B. Woodside and our General P. L. Swanson. They seem like right guys, but I'm speaking as a man who has yet to experience his first K. P.

If it doesn't blow us up first, they're going to blow up the Japs with it.

Hail, hail, the gang's all here! And the gang all chipped in on a project like this. It's the 'Big Bond Drive' getting under way, and we're going to pay for four of those Triple Threat Jeeps with our bonds and stamps. We all had to "dig down deep" but these days there's no better place to plant your do-re-me than in good old war bonds. 'nuff said unquote.

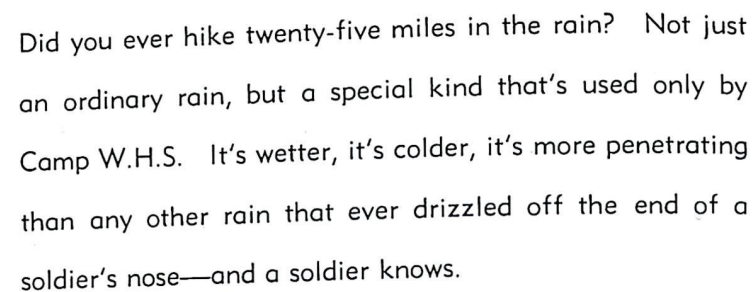

After a brief address by each of the afore mentioned gents, we all went over to the Commissary (the G. I. Lord & Taylor) and were completely outfitted. From heel to hair I am a khaki kid, and if I don't grow into these duds pretty soon I'll be a wacky kid. But if you think I look funny, just give a gander at Wretched. He wants to know where the guy he's sharing his suit with has been keeping himself.

Buck and Barkow just gave us a very stiff exam. My sole source of information or inspiration was the sentry pacing up and down outside the window. And you know—you never can imagine how unresponsive a sentry can be. We'll hear the results of the test later, but I don't think I'll be very eager to hear mine. Wretched wonders when do we march! He'll regret that statement—he'll be sorreeeee.

We chose our mascots today and got our K rations (passes) for the bivouac season (football). All this, however, almost passed me by, for

I'm a gone goose and a wet one. I sure believe that what's good for the goose is good for the sergeant. The green grass grows all around and is getting muddier all the time. Woe is me.

Gosh, it seems as if I go from worse to worser! My eagles have fled ,and I've got no pocket lettuce left to spend. So while the rest of the G.I. Joes are having some pictures taken to send home, I have to study the good old Army Bible. The boys of the "Lens" or photography division ,are taking the pictures, and they just started a whale of a campaign.

From hence to barracks where, numb arm and all, we had to scrub, scrub, scrub. The rookies are having a big shindig here with a couple of tank loads of homemade entertainment thrown in gratis. I'm a good stand-in for the "Irish Washerwoman" in present position. On second thought, I'm all set for a game of African dominoes.

Everybody's beating it over to the P. X. because a "snapper" man from one of the local sheets is there. Wretched, of course, is right in the front row, "muggin" it to beat the band. He'll be a little disappointed when he finds out that all the guy wanted was a picture of the new jeeps.

Some of the rowdier element out here have been doing devious devilments among us rookies. We're being accused right and left of being "raunchy." Our guns are "raunchy" our boots are "raunchy." Everything is just a big mess of 'raunchiness." Oh, well, they'll laugh the other way when we get our stripes.

I finally got it. There's nothing in this man's army that you can avoid with less success than K. P.—and that doesn't stand for King of the Privates, either. But I have one comfort. Wretched can't scoff anymore.

The lads in the Camouflage Division showed off their art in a stu-u-pondous display last P. M. Tsk, tsk, such woik. Maybe Kilmer was wrong about trees, huh? These guys can do anything. What's your order, gate? An oak tree, a weeping willow, rose arbor, gopher, just tell these embryo De Vincis. There was a booth where they drew our portraits, and a booth that advertised "What ever you want—we got it." Leave it to Wretched not to pass up an opening like that. He promptly walked up and ordered Betty Grable. You know, there's one thing about Wretched—he's not a bit bashful about starting out big.

Some G.I.'s polish the general's boots — other just hold his dog—

They really take their officer's training seriously, don't they?

I'm serving my K. P. week now. It's a nice clean job, anyhow, but boring. We polish everything; not just scrub it, or wash it, but polish it until you can see your face in it. You see your face in the floor, in the pots, and of all places, in the garbage cans. Never a dull moment here!

I just looked at my face in the garbage can, and have decided I ought to go on the stage. There's a sort of tradition that every year the Privates, Corporals, Sergeants, and Lieutenants each get up a show and put them on. Then some higher brasses come in from other camps and judge them.

Ready to do his part—Are you?
Your bonds will help to see him through

Result of "truth or consequences"—What did mama tell you about those games?

★

What do they do in the infantry? Oh, for the life of a paratrooper!

But I get so seasick on a merry-go-round! Honest, lieutenant, I do.

The little souls from the U. S. O. came around last night and sang Christmas carols to us. Some of the guys laughed at them, but most of us really appreciated them. Afterwards we all sat around and ate. The top sergeant politely looked the other way while we feasted. But—he couldn't even let us get away even on the night before the night before Christmas, and Wretched, as usual, was the goat.

March came in like a lion and rolled around the corner on a pair of skates borrowed from the Skating Party held at the Roller Bowl. Gee whizz, the month sure is blowing us around. Never been so rushed in all my life. But golly, doc, I'd better start at the beginning. The Victory Jamboree went off with a bond—(how green is my corn!!!) We really had a dot dot dot dash time. After the dullness of the week-end, the WACs and WAVES entertained us with a basketball game but then later in the week deserted us to entertain their respective mothers. The day after the Mother-Daughter banquet the Corporal said to the Private, "How about giving the dogs a workout?" So they invited out some girls from the town and really made a night of it. Oh, (slurp) I can't forget the play given by the graduating class, it was "Stage Door" and we fellows dressed up as debutantes—more fun. And then to top off this graduating process, we had a super-duper mess job over at the recreation hall, and it was a rip-snorter!!! (P.S. And the food was actually good.) The generals all let down their "toupees" and sang "The old gray mare" and dedicated it to all us looies-to-be!

And then some rookie read the class prophecy (Let's hope it won't come true, if you see what I mean!) Well, I've had enough buzzin' around for one month so I guess I'll go out meek and mild like the proverbial lamb.

Friendship club girls are the cwaziest people—

Such interest girls—is it really a commercial club report?

Certainly we don't pose our pictures—oh no!

★

On second thought—or look—we prefer the Hi-Y formal—

Today, all day today, we had classification tests. We tore our hair and cudgeled our brains, but I guess your pride and joy just isn't cut out to be anything more than a simple dogface.

Ohhhhhh! Pass me my bobby faint—

Spring is came, the grass is riz.
We wonder where the flowers

Hold your breath, Shirley, don't let it go out.

Then, after a trying day like this, we were entertained by the noted actor, Louis Lytton, who read several poems. Gosh! What energy! I was hardly able to stand on my feet, much less be able to go through such contortions as he did. I have extremely sore foot right at present, due to the fact that Wretched inadvertently dumped his rifle on it during drill.

Do you think I'll get a purple heart? Or just a black and blue spot? By the way, I have mastered the manual of arms. My sergeant says I do it at least five seconds faster than anybody else.

A bunch of us got together the other day and sent a valentine to our sergeant. It was all pink, with lace, ribbons, hearts and little cupids all over it. We signed it—Your Ittsikins, Mabel. By some strange chance (ahem) that is the name of the hamburger joint a couple of miles from camp. But now for the payoff! Imagine our surprise when our beloved top-kick led us in a hike that strangely enough took the direction of same hamburger joint. Ba-a-a-aby— I can tell you that there were several soldiers suffering from stoppage of breath due to extreme control of expression, one of which was your truly. Say—betcha Mabel was surprised too!

The WAC'S are having an old-time square-dance in the mess hall. I wonder if they draft the inmates of the WAC Guardhouse to scrub up the place, like they do over here?

Oh woe—no rest for the rookie. No matter how late we sneak in at night, we always have to get up at the same time in the morning—if not earlier. What's more, when you do get up, you have to climb into the darndest contraptions and combinations of clothes that were ever invented. Holding first place by a mile are those banes of the barracks, leggings. These leggings are canvas puttees, whose most endearing trait is the unpredictability of the laces. They part at the most inconvenient times. However this fiendish equipment has its good points. For instance, this morning when reveille blew, Wretched (who accompanied me on my nocturnal wanderings) snatched a few extra minutes of the good old you-know-what. With about 45 seconds left before inspection, Wretched leaped into his shoes, leggings, and a nice, long overcoat to give Ol' Sharp Eyes (our serg.) the impression that he has his trousers on too. But still, some of us Army guys are convinced that these devious leggings were designed by our pals in the Navy.

The cheer says fight, but must you take it so literally, Charlie?

The other day, Dec. 7, was the anniversary of the day they say will live in infamy. We had a big assembly, and a Mr. Rentschler spoke to us about being prepared and the post-war world. It really gave us some idea of what's coming. Then to take the edge off the sobering effects of his talk, we had a big feed for our own football team. We promptly lost every serious thought while listening to Ed Bang, whom you no doubt know.

The Gertrudes over in the Tech. division offices are sure taking a ribbing these nights. They have to work very late, often 'till three and four o'clock in the morning, and the boys on night watch or guard duty have much laugho at their expense. The Gertrudes, to us boys, are those who hold "Khaki Collar" or office jobs, which by the way aren't as soft as they look. But try to make us believe it. We think they have ink instead of blood in their veins.

O. C. S. had a sort of formal induction today, for its new class. This select group will, in time, become officers. We were more excited than they were, and they were strictly poker face. The brass hats brought a violinist here to entertain us. It was definitely long hair stuff, but good.

In case I forgot to mention it, the W. A. C. Lieutenants won the Stunt Night contest. I remembered it now because we had a party for the winners. Coke and hot dogs were served and, per usual, when there are women there, a good time was had by all.

There's life in the old boys, yet — were we surprised!

Great day, not a lieutenant in the whole place! They are all at a super special "bar-rage" just for them. The only snag is that they cleaned out every girl near camp to take with them. It was almost worth it not to have those shavetails around.

O. T. S. held its annual pre-Christmas formal dance this week. It was in the mess hall, but we hardly recognized the place. Even to us, who spend most of our time there, it looked good.

I don't think Ziggy really believes all that stuff they keep telling him.

Corporal Keirl puts his corps through their customary capers. Mighty, isn't he.

Millie Meil just washed her hair and she can't do a thing with it.

Our band had themselves a shindig the other evening! Wretched and I took it in. We don't belong to the band but they invited us because we helped clean the clubhouse.

We were on maneuvers down in the hills and look at the mascot we brought back—

Does Koffee have one of these in his wallet, Marge! I'd sure like to—

K-K-K-Kitty — you look so p-pretty but don't evah look at me like that!

Say, you should hear me on the drums. A couple of sports let us hit the hides on their instrument and we can sure beat that old boogie around.

Here's the favorite pin-up girl of barracks No. 23—that's not my barracks but a vote "aye"—

"Cassie" will make a perfect housewife — His medal is for peeling potatoes fastest!

Just not to make the picture too bright, I put a typical U.S.O. scene in the corner.

Wretched blew his last on the tuba — and such a little squeak from such a hunk of brass — oh man. It sure was a lovely way to spend an evening.

The signal corps is doing a sure fire job in the line of fire. Those guys open our only lines of communication. When we're out in bivouac we're not allowed to receive any mail from outside and we can write only once a month.

Yumpin' Yiminy, Maw, watch me yump—This commando training—whew.

Two to one you couldn't get another coat on that rack.

Mohn's moaning, Fry's fryin', and the other three just happened to be there.

Happy day! At last it has come. Today I am a G-Man. A G-Man is a full fledged member of K-P detail. To be specific, he is the chief disposer of all garbage. He has little rest while on the job because the Army kitchen is a notorious collector of the stuff in question. A.K.P. isn't a member in good standing until he trips on his way to the incinerator and displays his wares all over the company area. This is the signal for loud and lusty cheers from all spectators. The G-Man is the cleanest member of the squad—because he has to take more baths than anybody else. Well you can guess what happened, for I have attained the dignified title of—G-Man.

If only all the combat tests were this easy—oh joy!

Imagine finding an extra girl at one of our dances—

Everybody's chest is sticking out a mile, around the post this week. And we've got a right to pop our buttons. The big Bond Drive has ended and good old company B has gone far and away, over the top. The rah-rah boys gave us a certificate of merit that rivals the pin-up gals on the barracks walls.

The non-coms had themselves quite a time at their banquet. Plenty of the-kind-that's-never-served-in-mess-food too. After partaking of said stuff, they listened to some lecturers. There's only one catch though—no second helpings. All in all, they told us that it was something to write home about—so I did.

In keeping with the events of the sporting world, we have organized a track team in our barracks. We have been doing pretty well so far, and have some good men on our team.

How y'all! I'm acquiring a fine specimen of Loos-i-anna drawl. This raw bunch that has been assigned to me is strictly from south of the Mason Dixon. I am a nasty old mean Yankee (gorsh). But how else can I pound it into their heads that this is the army Mr. Jones. I'm sure that no other squad has seen the red flag as often as mine.

It was really funny out on the range. These gents seem to fancy themselves as duellers and nothing makes them madder than the sight of that red flag, or as the boys so affectionately term it—"Maggie's Drawers." The pit boys aren't soft-hearted in these matters either, for if the soldier misses the target after five shots, they gleefully wave Maggie's Drawers with a zest that infuriates the marksmen. It's no use to demand a recount either for this would impair the pit boy's keen delight when he discovers that the target hasn't even been scorched. Yass suh!

Several of these new guys are working hard at the art of becoming a "Gold-Brick." They are taking first hand lessons from that greatest of all Goldbrickers, Wretched. It really takes a lot of practice to become an accomplished Gold-Brick. You can't just be allergic to work, you must do lots of research as to the methods of getting out of work. A man of Wretched's caliber can make a fifteen minute job stretch over a period of days, thus rendering him immune to certain distasteful details. However, the Gold-Brick is recognized as standard army equipment, cause there's at least one in every outfit.

These Southern boys sho-nuff get a lot of mail, scads and scads of the stuff. At mail call we're stampeded by the sons of the south in their mad rush for V-mail from females. But sergeant or not, they'll run a hard race to beat me to the bag.

We're in the midst of the dusty season at present. The place is like a desert, and anything faintly resembling the comforts of home is merely a mirage. We drill all day, and often at night. When we aren't actually picking 'em up and laying 'em down, we're bending the ever lovin' ear to lectures given by our Comm. officers, and say — you can throw all my old Wilkie buttons away, mom, cause a little bird from Wisconsin whispered to me that I won't be needing them anymore.

I wish a monsoon would blow over about now. When you're camping during the Sahara season, you breathe, eat, and see nothing but dust. The worst of it is, we're carrying on mock warfare and our meals aren't regular, and even what we do eat is diluted with sand.

Redson

Some of these U.S.O. hostesses are so very gracious and kind to us poor G.I.'s

★
Wonder if those two are working on the camp paper or reading the funnies —

The WAC's may be training for desk jobs but they sure do it the hard way.

Some of these WAC's really pick on the sergeants around here, don't they, Donald?

Don't worry, Mom, this jug is empty. It was used in the WAC Show

When we got our P.F.C. stripes we were as proud as Pop Dionne. When we were made corporals, we couldn't find a hat to fit us — our head size had changed so. But now — now I wear on my sleeve three stripes! I'm beginning to feel like a tiger.

Top Sergeant Morgan evidently doesn't find his duties too arduous. Look at the grin!

I want to let out a roar that could be heard from here to Kokomo, but I must be dignified sober, and stern. No more jokes on the sergeant, no more poker games after lights out. It's certainly strange how my perspective has changed so quickly.

There's Sgt. Myers — he left for an air base before our basic was over.

Most of these I snapped on my last leave. You can see we don't have much to do.

Yesterday I was a happy-go-lucky corporal, hating my sergeant as well as the next guy. You see, completely normal. But today, my weather-eye is on the lookout for some likely candidate for K.P. And with as much vengeance as my predecessor, I'll saddle him grimly with the job.

Section 8 gets a lot of us acting this way. Marian doesn't like it!

Inspection will just have to wait — You can't go out with your hair uncombed.

When I look over my awkward squad, I shudder to think what I must have been. This squad is a bunch of very raw recruits, and trying to teach them the rudiments of close-order drill is like — well, I really don't know of anything comparable to it. No matter how hard you try, they can't get it through their thick heads that I'm not addressed as 'sir.'

A typical conversation goes something like this. "Listen soldier, I'm just a sergeant, it is not necessary to call me 'Sir.' Only commissioned officers are called 'sir!' Unnerstan'?" — "Yes, sir." — "No, not 'sir,' just 'sergeant,' get it?" "I think so, sir." O-o-o-o-h Judas! I know now what they mean when they say that God pities old maids and sergeants.

P. X. is getting a rush today. We just got paid, and the eagles are flying like nobody's business. Of course, the games with the little ivory cubes are flourishing. There is also a great deal of I.O.U. collecting going on.

Our own G. I. Orchestra and Band gave a concert for us last night in the big auditorium. A mixture of classical, semi-classical and strictly modern music suited everybody's taste.

It is rumored that a squad of silver-screen sisters are going to stop over here for a few hours. Our G.I. 'Lux' is getting a big rush. Not a few of these bozos are entertaining the idea that next to them Robert Taylor is strictly the pig's knuckles — and who was that guy Beau Brummel anyway? Ah well, I just hope there's enough soap for me!

Before graduation the Sgt's and Lt's. are having a prom. A real fancy one, out of camp and everything. Just for us, a special consideration has been granted by the General. Our 12 hour passes which usually last until 12:00 are going to last until 12:15 that night. Wheeeeeee!!!

This is the picture they put on the recruiting poster — beautiful dream!

Say, I betcha it's going to rain and ye olde campe will once more be a muddy morass. Perhaps even that will be better than this continuous sand stuff. I don't know which I like less. Is there no middle ground? Yes, says Wretched, there's a boxing match to be held in the middle of field, so I'll unhand my pen and be off to the races — I mean the fights, and I hope they won't pull their punhces because we need a little excitement to change the pokerfaced visage of camp W.H.S.

W.A.A.F. ON SECOND HUNDRED

Bette Wilcox of the W.A.A.F.'s has just returned from her 200th trip across the ocean. She has been ferrying planes to the Russian front. She says, "I'm having a little trouble keeping up with the Russian front. It's been moving pretty fast lately."

UP IN THE AIR OVER WILLIAMS

Aeronautical engineer Al Williams has designed the Super-duper Little Daisy Helicopter especially for children. It is constructed to keep children hung up out of mischief, yet easily within their mothers' reach. Williams expects the day nursery to vanish completely as a result of his invention.

DOTTIE DRAWS PERFECT PIN-UP

Commercial artist Dorothy Wilson has, at special request of the W.A.C. training station in Cleveland perfected the ideal pin-up. Although the girls seem to like this combination of Cary Grant, Alan Ladd, and Tyrone Power, the higher brasses claim that he takes their minds off their work.

TRIEPEI DESIGNS SUPER-BIRDHOUSE

A super duper complex duplex birdhouse has been recently designed to promote compatibility among our feathered friends. Buff Tripepi, the architect, says he feels almost ready to begin designing real houses.

RETREAT LEADS ADVANCE

Lt. Donald B. Vance, pilot of Army's new pursuit ship, was with the first wave of the invasion of Germany. "Retreat" Vance is credited with 28 German planes.

GEORGIA RIDES CRIMSON TIDE

The Georgia Tech football team, led by Capt. David Whitfield, settled the score for Louisiana. Captain Whitfield said, "Anybody can do it with cooperation."

WILCOX GAINS PERMANENT POSITION

Quite by accident, Cadet Nurse Jeanne Wilcox has secured herself a permanent position in City Hospital. "She's marvellous with the male patients" exclaimed the head nurse.

SHE COVERS THE EARTH

Miss Ruth Wills, secretary to Aloysius P. Snickelfritz, Jr., has traveled over eighty-one per cent of the earth. Congratulations, Ruth, you're almost up with Mrs. Roosevelt now!

CIRCUS CONTRACT IS AWARDED

Barnum Brothers now have a new fat lady in their troupe. After working for years to tip the scales at 115, Rose Barbour took PDQ capsules and her weight soared.

NEW FOOD FACT FOUND

Tired of being called "Red" Roach, Robert Roach has experimented and found that by eating black olives instead of carrots he may have jet black hair.

WAVE DESIGNS NEW UNIFORM

Ginger Woolever S/2c received national acclaim from all sailors today as she brought out the new Wave uniform. Convinced that men prefer feminine women, she has designed a sea blue uniform trimmed with ruffles.

Upon rising this fine morning, I was pleasantly surprised to find that the sun was shining— I woke up my buddy so he could view this phenomena, but he has been here ten months and has already seen it. Anyhow, the mud is nearly dry by now, and we are looking forward to a nice sunny graduation day.

Another Bond drive started today. There was a big assembly led by one of our 2nd lieutenants. The band played a couple of numbers, and we were addressed by a marine captain who had been in action in the South Pacific.

The girls from the U. S. O. had a big dance at the camp. It was the biggest thing that's happened for a long time. Not all of us got to go, as it was limited to those invited by the girls themselves. Being one of the chosen few I was able to observe that they had lovely new decorations and a real, live, out-of-camp band! It was strictly formal, and my joy was unbounded upon finding that there was no stag line to leer at my date.

The "Lonely Hearts Club" sponsored a roller skating party, the profits of which went to Crile General Hospital, which has recently been built near here. It is a hospital for the wounded soldiers who are returning now.

We were all over at the lecture room this morning for a lulu of a lecture by Commander-in-Chief J. B. Woodside. It wasn't a very long talk and we had the rest of the morning and the whole afternoon off. Now, I don't like to leave my squad. They're shaping up into a darned smart outfit of soldiers, Goldbrickers and all. Nevertheless, this great love didn't change my mind about going into town with a few of the fellows. We really did the town—what there was of it, and now I'll have to borrow a few simoleons to get back my laundry. Wretched uses my shirts at will, and I find that I'm running short of shirts as well as cents. Ha-ha—just wait 'till he looks for his tie in the morning. Yours truly is now wearing it, and anticipates a jolly time of it tomorrow at sunrise.

These rookies really kill me, though. I don't see how anybody could be as dumb as they are. We were dumb, I know, but we couldn't have been like that. The questions these dog-faces ask would have Mr. Anthony tearing his toupee. Oh, well, I'll have to bear with them. Perhaps they all have a vitamin deficiency or something.

Most draftees are both pleased and surprised, more pleased than surprised, when they meet their first three-striper.

The Army Sergeant (Sarge to his intimates) has long been pictured as a granite pushed, tough, unrelenting, hunk of man who has a tendency to devour rookies; uncooked ones, yet!

True, there are still some who answer this description but the species is rapidly becoming extinct. Instead of a tough guy, a slim youth who has no trace of rough talk about him, wears glasses and a meek look, rushed hospitably out to meet them. This gives the rookie ambition. Why, even he may be called Sarge some day...

Well, I have to study up on my psychology now, that's the, latest Army method of making rookies behave, you know. They may have something there, but they sure never used it on us!

Well, the great day is here! At 9:30 this morning we are scheduled to get our wings! I thought I would be excited, but it seems just like any other day now. The sun isn't shining now but it will be by 9:30, I hope. I am trying to convince myself that those dark places are just the silver linings showing through. I'm going down to the parade grounds now, for assembly

... and so - while I wrote a longer letter than I had planned to - I hope that I have given you a complete report on the year. And I know that the snags and sketches are right up your alley, 'cause you always liked that sort of thing.
I don't know where I am going next, but when I get it you know.
So 'til then

S' long
Jim

Some restaurants are known for a special dish, others for atmosphere and still others for quality . . . we have acquired all three and more.

Your repeated visits to Skyway have confirmed the fact that you enjoyed it here. We have been more than pleased to have been your host on all occasions. Our best wishes are with you wherever you may go.
