

TEACHERS STAYING CONNECTED

Social media has become too big to ignore and Willoughby-Eastlake staff members have embraced the ability to communicate and educate their students using resources such as Twitter.

As apps such as Twitter become a prominent presence in society, teachers, coaches and district administrators are integrating it into their communication about daily activities and schedules.

Bill Behrend, teacher and coach at South High School shared, "Twitter is one of the easiest and fastest ways to communicate the exciting things happening in my classroom. One tweet can be sent out and immediately, parents and community members know what is happening in my classroom. They can also get a sense of the work being done on a daily basis."

Crista Ditlevson shares some great news about her students on her @missd_WMS Twitter.

 @BTSWE

Stripping wire and soldering this morning with Mr. Trolli at Success Academy.

@BTSWE recently shared updates about a great visit from Mr. Trolli, a generous volunteer who shared his time and talents with students.

Al DiFranco, the father of two students in Willoughby-Eastlake classrooms stated, "I enjoy following my daughter's school and teachers on Twitter because it helps me stay informed and learn more about what is going on. Often I will even spot her and her friends in a picture!"

"Social media has enabled our teachers to share assignments, changes in schedules and allows our staff to highlight the great accomplishments in their classrooms in an instant. I would encourage all of our families to 'follow' their child's school and teachers on Twitter if they have not already done so," stated Superintendent Steve Thompson.

@WESchools

@Thompson_WESsup